

It is with regret that I have to announce the death of Earth Science Journal.

The Journal has existed for five years through the willing assistance of many unpaid helpers. In spite of their efforts to keep the Journal thriving rapid inflation has increased costs at a faster rate than they can be recovered by increased circulation and subscriptions. The decision has been made, therefore, to cease publication before a loss occurs.

The Editor